

Friday 26th June

I do hope you have managed to enjoy the good weather we have just had and that you have not melted in the heat! We are supposed to have some stormy weather today – so let us wait and see. I am hoping to get out for a bike ride this weekend and I hope you do something fun too.

English

This English lesson has a very interesting challenge. I wonder if you can challenge the people in your house to do it too. Who will write the best short story? <https://www.bbc.co.uk/bitesize/articles/zrfv6g8>

Maths

The maths lesson today is all about lines. Remember those words we had yesterday and Wednesday? Good, because you are going to need them today. There is drawing involved in the lesson. Make sure you use a ruler – you all had one when we finished school - and make sure you can talk about the lines you draw. Are they parallel to each other? Are they perpendicular to each other? Are they in front or to the right of? Which is the shortest line? How long is the lines you have drawn?

Well done and speak soon
